"I Have a Pretty Voice and a Beautiful Tail What Will You Call Me?" Proud Peacock's Wail

He's All Excited Over Being Picked for His Picture In Herald.

SEND THIS IN TODAY Nameless Animal Contest

To the Animal Editor,
The Washington Herald.

Dear Sir: I think..... would be an appropriate name for the Peacock, a picture of which appears in this morning's paper.

Sincerely,
Name
Address

"Aarrk, aarrk, aarrk."
Excited over being chosen to represent the Peacock family in the Washington Herald naming contest, Mr. Peacock forgot his usual dignity and started singing for the photographer, only consenting to stop when the photographer assured him that music made him nervous while at work.

Some Real Singing.
"Oh, very well," the peacock agreed; "but it's a pity. However, come out some time when you aren't so busy, and I'll show you what real singing sounds like." The photographer promised, but secretly determined that hereafter and always when he goes to the Zoo he will be so busy that he will not have a minute for Mr. Peacock's concert.

Mr. Peacock, however, believed him; and as the photographer hurried away he heard him practicing for the concert. "Aarrk, aarrk, aarrk," each note reaching to the utmost limits of the Zoological Park.

Perhaps the Peacock family's mistaken idea of their singing ability is one of the reasons Mr. Blackburn, the head keeper at the Zoo, does not keep them caged. If they were all collected under one roof and decided to give a joint concert, heaven knows what would happen.

The Gnu is still upset over the comparatively small number of names he has received, and he hopes that the children will not fail to send in a few more before the end of the contest. Yesterday several new ones were suggested, but not as many by several hundred as have been sent in for the other animals.

Among the names for the Gnu was "Africa," suggested by little Augusta Kaiser, because the gnu comes from Africa and looks so savage.

Charles Suter's Choice.
Six-year-old Charles Suter, of Rosslyn, Va., asked his mother to write to the Animal Editor and ask that the Wild Horse be named "Prince," after his own horse, "whom we all love." Though his mother wrote the letter, little Charles signed it.

As the Puma is 5 years old, Charles Kenneth Francis, of 1333 Third street northwest, suggests that she be called "Vee," in honor of the "V" Liberty Loan.

The Animal Editor is keeping the "surprise" promised the winners in the naming contest a secret, because it wouldn't be a surprise if he told. But he is certain that when he does tell, the winners will be delighted with it.

Among the names received by the Animal Editor yesterday were:

PUMA.

FEDERAL BANKS TO AID BUILDING

Government Has Plan to Assist Home Construction Through Loans.

Plans for organization of Federal Home Loan Banks to stimulate building were outlined in a statement given out yesterday at the Labor Department.

The plan is embodied in a bill which will be presented to Congress early in the special session.

Department officials emphasized that the popular impression that the banks would lend government funds direct to builders is wrong. Instead the plan would make the Federal Home Loan Banks a "clearing house" for building and loan associations which would be able to realize on their long term mortgages and meet increased demands for loans. As associations clearing through these banks would be stockholders, it was explained.

How the building and loan associations would work in conjunction with the Federal Home Loan Banks is explained in the official statement, which reads:

"In the Federal Home Loan Bank plan, the affiliation of an association would be entirely optional and an association which does not join in the banking plan would not be affected in any way by the new system." The official statement says.

"The business of the banks would be conducted by boards of directors elected by member associations."
